Although domestic consumption increased compared to the same period, the steel industry continued to face overcapacity and intense price competition, keeping profit margins at a low levels. In addition, low-priced imported steel continues to exert substantial pressure on the consumption capacity and market share of domestic enterprises.

IV. REPORT ON THE PROGRESS OF IMPLEMENTING THE SHARE REPURCHASE PLAN

In response to rising trade protectionism, tariffs measures, and technical barriers in export markets, the Group has implemented a high-liquidity reserve strategy to maintain stability and safeguard its economic interests in the international market.

In the coming period, the Group has identified the prioritization of capital allocation for strategic objectives to consolidate its leading position, as follows:

- Production Modernization: Accelerating in-depth investment, renovating, and upgrading existing production lines to optimize efficiency, reduce consumption rates, and satisfy the requirements of demanding global markets.
- Enhancing Supply Capacity and Market Share Development: Expanding the general warehouse system at strategic locations to shorten delivery times and minimize operating costs. Continuing to increase the presence of the Hoa Sen Home system nationwide, transforming the business model from pure manufacturing to a building materials and interior ecosystem to maximize profit margins per product.

Given this context, the Board of Directors (BOD) recognizes that retaining equity to deploy key investment projects, upgrade technology, expand plant capacity, and develop domestic and international distribution networks will deliver practical and sustainable benefits to shareholders. This is a strategic orientation to enhance competitiveness and reinforce the Group's leading position.
